WHAT DO STUDENTS DO IN A TYPICAL WEEK OF DESIGN CAMP?

During the week of Design Camp, students will be engaged in hands-on projects, presentations by Fay Jones School faculty and students, tours of local design projects, discussions and visits from local designers, all with the intention of teaching the students about the design professions, which include architecture, landscape architecture and interior design.

Past projects have included designing an outdoor classroom or a café, where the students plan out their design through sketching and model building. Students will also learn terms used by designers and how to observe and record the world around them through notes and sketching activities.

The tours usually occupy one day of the camp. In the past, these have included Cooper Memorial Chapel, Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art, Keenan Tower, Heifer International, the Robinson Theater, Shelby Farms, the University of Arkansas Community Design Center and local architecture and design firms, along with walking tours of the University of Arkansas campus, downtown Fayetteville, Little Rock and Memphis, Tennessee.

During the week of camp, students will also have the opportunity to meet with the school's advisors to learn how they can start preparing themselves in high school for a career in the design professions.

CAN I PICK MY STUDENT UP EARLY ON FRIDAY TO GET A START ON THE WEEKEND?

We strongly encourage you to allow your student to remain at camp for the full day on Friday. Students will present their work at a reception that afternoon, to which family and friends are invited.

WHAT SHOULD MY STUDENT BRING TO DESIGN CAMP?

If your student enrolls in the Fayetteville overnight camp, you will receive a list of recommended items to bring, as well as pointers on what to leave at home. All campers should bring a backpack and a water bottle (one will be provided to you on the first day of camp), they and should wear comfortable shoes, as we typically walk a little bit each day of camp.

WHO TEACHES THE STUDENTS AT DESIGN CAMP?

The students are led by faculty and student teaching assistants from the Fay Jones School of Architecture and Design who are in the Departments of Architecture, Landscape Architecture or Interior Design. We have a ratio of approximately (1) faculty and (1) teaching assistant per (12) Design Camp students and we try to have an even ratio of faculty and teaching assistants from the three departments to give the students exposure to all three disciplines.

FOR FAYETTEVILLE, WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN DESIGN CAMP I AND ADVANCED DESIGN CAMP?

Design Camp I is generally for students who are attending for the first time.

The advanced camp, Design Camp II, is for returning students and/or students who will be a junior or senior and have taken classes in architecture and engineering or worked on design projects through a mentor or other program. If you have questions about whether or not your student should be enrolled in Design Camp II, you can always contact us and we can help determine which camp would be most appropriate.

FOR THE FAYETTEVILLE OVERNIGHT CAMP, WHAT TYPES OF ACTIVITIES ARE PLANNED FOR THE EVENING HOURS?

Students can watch movies, play board games, visit the shops and cafes along Dickson Street and more. They are always supervised by trained counselors. Several students who have attended the overnight Fayetteville camp enjoyed returning to studio to work on their projects in the evening!

WHAT IF MY STUDENT HAS FOOD ALLERGIES?

Indicate any allergies on your registration forms, and please be as specific as possible. Every effort will be made to accommodate your camper's needs.
